Introduction

College is affordable and financial aid is available!

There are many financial aid resources available to help students go to college, paying not just for tuition and books but also for costs of living like rent, food, and transportation. Some of this financial aid is only for people who have experienced foster care or who have very low incomes.

Did you know that the more financial aid a student receives, the more likely they are to enroll and succeed in college, whether that is a two-year or four-year college or a career and technical education pathway?

This guide can assist current and former foster youth and unaccompanied homeless youth* in understanding the types of financial aid available for college, important steps to maximize the amount of aid received, and tips for maintaining aid eligibility once enrolled.

*Unaccompanied homeless youth are defined as youth who are not in the physical custody of a parent or guardian and are currently homeless or at risk of homelessness (see the “How to Complete the FAFSA or CADAA” section for more details). Youth experiencing homelessness while in the physical custody of their parent or guardian should refer to general FAFSA/CADAA completion resources listed in the “Additional Resources” section.
Types of Financial Aid

There are several different types of financial aid, that can come from a variety of sources such as the state or federal government, colleges or universities, or private organizations and companies.

THE CLOCK IS TICKING!
There are age and time limits for financial aid and other benefits. Students should take advantage of resources while they are available:

Federal Pell Grants have a lifetime limit of six years for full-time students. The time limit is pro-rated for students who attend part-time.

The Chafee Grant for foster youth ends at age 26 and is available for a maximum of five years.

The Cal Grant has a limit of eight years for students who were in foster care on or after their 13th birthday and four years for non-foster youth students.

The Middle Class Scholarship has a limit of four years (or five years if pursuing a teaching credential) depending on education level when awarded.

GRANTS
Grants are money for college from the federal or state government and are usually based on financial need. Examples include the Federal Pell Grant, state Cal Grant, Chafee Grant, and Federal Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grant (FSEOG). Many four-year colleges and universities also provide grants. Grants are often described as “free money” because they don’t have to be repaid. Once a student receives a grant, however, there are conditions for them to continue receiving it in subsequent terms. Students must continue to do well in college in order to receive additional grants. See the “How to Maintain Financial Aid” section of this guide to learn about how students can make sure they keep their financial aid. While a high school diploma or equivalent (aka GED exam) isn’t required to attend a community college, it is required to receive most federal and state financial aid and many types of grants.

FEE WAIVERS
Colleges can waive (i.e., not charge for) enrollment fees or tuition (the cost of classes). For example, the California College Promise Grant covers tuition at California’s community colleges. But even if fees are waived, it’s important that students apply for additional financial aid because the cost of attending college includes housing, books, supplies, transportation, food, healthcare, and personal needs.

SCHOLARSHIPS
Scholarships are money from colleges, universities, community-based organizations, churches, or businesses. Scholarships can be awarded based on factors such as financial need, experience in the foster care system, ethnicity, special talents, academic performance, leadership ability, community service, or personal life experiences such as being in foster care or homeless. See Appendix A for a list of scholarship resources.
WORK–STUDY

Students with financial need may be allowed to earn a portion of their financial aid award through part-time employment on- or off-campus. These jobs, known as work–study, are usually flexible, to accommodate a student’s class schedule. Not every campus offers work–study. To apply, students should complete the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) and contact their college’s financial aid office for further information. Students may be required to complete additional steps, such as an application with information about their skills and preferences, and an orientation and training, in order to secure their work–study placement. If a student does not receive a work–study allocation on their financial aid award, they may be able to appeal through the financial aid office.

Undocumented students pursuing college in California may also be eligible for a similar program called the California Dream Act Service Incentive Grant Program, however this program has different eligibility criteria and application processes. Students can learn more by visiting www.csac.ca.gov/dsig.

LOANS

Student loans must be repaid, and often with interest, which will increase the total amount students have to pay back. Interest is money that must be paid to the lender in exchange for borrowing money. It’s based on a percentage of the loan amount. For example, if a student borrows $10,000 to be paid back over 10 years, the loan would actually cost a total of $10,000 plus an additional $2,500–$3,000 in interest.

There are several different types of loans, such as federal Stafford loans, federal PLUS loans, and private loans. The federal government offers subsidized or unsubsidized loans. Subsidized loans, which are available to students with lower incomes, cost less in interest.

When a student completes the FAFSA, they will automatically be considered for loans as part of their financial aid package. Students completing the California Dream Act Application (CADAA) may be eligible for state loans if they are attending a University of California (UC) campus or California State University (CSU).

TIP

Just because a student is offered loans does not mean that they must accept those loans.

Because loans have to be paid back, usually with interest, and can add up quickly, it is wise for students to seek guidance from a college financial aid counselor before accepting loans to determine what is best for them. If a student must utilize student loans, they should borrow the least amount possible.

FINANCIAL AID CAN ADD UP!

Students who are low income can qualify for thousands of dollars in financial aid to cover not only the cost of tuition, but living costs as well such as rent, food, and transportation. For example, an award package for a community college student enrolled in 12 units that includes a Federal Pell Grant, FSEOG, Cal Grant, CA College Promise Grant, and Student Success Completion Grant adds up to over $13,000. Students attending a CSU or UC can benefit from the Middle Class Scholarship program as well as additional aid offered by the institution. More money may also be available through programs such as EOP, EOPS, work-study, and private scholarships.

Eligible foster youth can receive additional aid including the Chafee Grant and expanded Cal Grant, Student Success Completion Grant, and Middle Class Scholarship awards that can add up to thousands of additional dollars in financial aid. Did you know that eligible foster youth may qualify for over $30,000 in financial aid if attending community college full-time (12 or more units)? Some students earn more going to school than they can earn working!
Where, When, and What Is Needed to Apply for Financial Aid

Where to Apply

HELP IS AVAILABLE!

The process of applying for financial aid can seem confusing and overwhelming. Students shouldn’t have to do it alone, and there are a number of people who can assist students in completing the application process.

For FOSTER YOUTH, a meeting convened by the child welfare or probation agency known as a Child and Family Team (CFT) meeting can be used to help identify the best person to assist a student with their application. This could include a caregiver, resource parent, high school counselor, or Independent Living Program Coordinator.

For UNACCOMPANIED HOMELESS STUDENTS, assistance can also be provided by high school counselors, school district homeless liaisons, basic needs coordinators at colleges, and college financial aid counselors.

Complete either the FAFSA or CADAA to Apply for Financial Aid

If the student is a U.S. CITIZEN, a permanent resident, or other eligible non-citizen* complete the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) at:

FAFSA.GOV
(Paper applications are also available but not recommended)

What are they eligible for?
Both federal (i.e., Pell Grant, Federal Work Study, etc.) and state financial aid (i.e., Cal Grant).

*What is an eligible non-citizen?
Examples include a U.S. permanent resident who has a green card (Permanent Resident Card), a conditional permanent resident with a conditional Green Card, or a “refugee.” Students can find the complete list on the FAFSA.
What are they eligible for?
Students are not eligible for federal aid; they can only receive state financial aid (i.e., Cal Grant, CA College Promise Grant, and Chafee Grant). They can pay state resident fees (instead of higher out-of-state fees) at California’s public colleges and universities.

Who is eligible to submit the CADAA?
To qualify to submit for the CADAA, undocumented students must meet certain criteria referred to as “AB 540 criteria,” have Temporary Protected Status, or hold a U Visa. Deferred Action for Childhood Arrivals (DACA) is not required. Students with DACA status must still complete a CADAA, even if they have been issued a social security card that says, “VALID FOR WORK ONLY WITH DHS AUTHORIZATION.” To learn more about AB 540 eligibility, visit dream.csac.ca.gov.

TIP
FOSTER YOUTH who are undocumented may qualify for Special Immigrant Juvenile Status (SIJS), which allows them to obtain legal status while applying to become a lawful permanent resident (LPR), also known as obtaining a Green Card. While students who obtain their Green Card through SIJS can complete the FAFSA, students with a pending application for SIJS must submit the CADAA. Students should contact their child welfare agency if they have any questions or need more information.
When to Apply

- Typically, students planning to attend a four-year university should apply between October 1 and March 2 before the start of the school year, in particular to ensure eligibility for a Cal Grant and institutional aid. However, the 2024-2025 applications won’t be released until December 2023 and the priority deadline has been extended to April 2. Community college students have until September 2 to apply for a Cal Grant. Other forms of aid such as the Pell Grant have later application deadlines, but all students are encouraged to apply as soon as possible to qualify for the maximum aid award possible.

- Some colleges may have earlier priority deadlines, so check with your campus.

- Students can apply for financial aid even before they submit their college applications.

What a student needs to apply:

- Name and social security number, exactly as it appears on their Social Security Card, or Alien Registration Number [FAFSA applicants only].

  If a FOSTER YOUTH student filing a FAFSA does not have their Social Security Card, they should contact their county’s child welfare department or Independent Living Program (ILP) for assistance.

  STUDENTS EXPERIENCING HOMELESSNESS should contact their high school counselor or school district homeless liaison.

- Statewide Student Identifier number (SSID) [CADAA applicants only]. This is a 10-digit number that is given to all students enrolled in a California elementary, middle, or high school. It is optional but recommended on the CADAA.

- Email address that a student checks regularly. Avoid high school emails that expire. Create or use an email such as Gmail or Yahoo.

- List of up to 20 colleges to apply to. This can be updated later, if needed, once the application is processed. At least one college must be listed to complete the application. After the application has been processed, a student can submit the FAFSA/CADAA to 20 additional colleges, if necessary, by replacing the original set of 20 colleges with a new set of 20 colleges. The original set of 20 colleges will still receive the information from the FAFSA/CADAA. Repeat this process as many times as necessary.

- Information about the student’s current assets, such as the total of checking and savings accounts. Students who receive certain federal benefits, such as CalFresh or Medi-Cal, are exempt from having to provide information about current assets. All students must now provide consent to allow the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) to share federal tax information with the FAFSA. Students no longer have the option to enter income information manually, however, in some limited cases, including if previous scholarships or Americorps payments were reported on a student’s tax return, certain tax information may need to be inputted.

- Individual Taxpayer Identification Number (ITIN) [CADAA only]. An undocumented immigrant would obtain an ITIN to file a federal income tax return. This is an optional field on the CADAA, and only pertains to students who met the minimum income threshold for filing taxes.
How to Complete the FAFSA or CADAA

Visit jbay.org/resources/financial-aid-guide/ for step-by-step guides that provide screenshots and detailed instructions for each question on the FAFSA and CADAA.

PLANNING YOUR TIME

| Completing the FAFSA/CADAA | 30–60 minutes |

FOR FILLING OUT THE FAFSA OR CADAA:

1. Create a system to safely store passwords and usernames. The FAFSA and CADAA require students to create a username and password. Students should save this information somewhere safe so they can access it later in case they forget.

2. Create an FSA ID if completing the FAFSA. Students must create an FSA ID to complete the FAFSA online. Students will be asked to provide a verified email address as well as their name, date of birth, and social security number. Make sure the name and social security number entered match the name and number on the student’s social security card exactly. It is recommended that students create an FSA ID 3–7 days prior to starting the FAFSA to allow for processing time at studentaid.gov/fsa-id/create-account/launch.

3. Select the application for the school year that the student plans to attend college. For example, if a student is filling out the FAFSA/CADAA in January 2024, they would select the 2024–25 application if they plan to attend college during the 2024–25 academic year. If they are applying for an upcoming summer session, it is recommended that they complete applications for both academic years, the one preceding the summer session and the one following it. Once they have picked a college, students should check with their financial aid office about summer financial aid, as this varies by institution.

4. When asked about college or career school plans, first-time college students should select “First Year (freshman),” even if they took college courses while enrolled in high school.

5. Take advantage of being an “Independent Student” on the FAFSA or CADAA, if eligible, when responding to questions in the “Student Personal Circumstances” section. An “Independent Student” does not have to provide any information—including income, tax, and asset information—about biological, adoptive, or foster parents (including relative or non-relative caregivers), or legal guardians, and may qualify for more money.

Current or former foster youth and students experiencing homelessness may qualify as “Independent Students” on the FAFSA/CADAA if they select any of the options below. Students should check all that apply.

OPTIONS FOR FOSTER YOUTH:

- “At any time since the student turned 13, they were a ward of the court.”
- “At any time since the student turned 13, they were in foster care.”
- “The student is or was in a legal guardianship with someone other than their parent or stepparent, as determined by a court in their state of residence.”

Not sure if a foster youth student qualifies as an Independent Student?

- Neither legal guardians nor foster parents (resource parents) are considered parents when completing the FAFSA/CADAA.
- Even if the youth was in foster care or was a ward of the court for just one day after they turned 13, they qualify.
- If the youth was in foster care or a dependent or ward of the court, but remained in the legal custody of their parents, they do not qualify as an Independent Student on the FAFSA/CADAA.
- Some foster youth are under the jurisdiction of probation due to involvement with the juvenile justice system. These students are still eligible for independent status. However, someone who is incarcerated is not considered a ward of the court on the FAFSA/CADAA.
OPTIONS FOR HOMELESS YOUTH:
“At any time on or after July 1, 2023, was the student unaccompanied and either (1) homeless or (2) self-supporting and at risk of being homeless?”

Not sure if a student experiencing homelessness qualifies as an independent student?

- Students must be “unaccompanied,” which means that they are not living with or in the physical custody of a parent or guardian.
- Being homeless is defined as “lacking fixed, regular, and adequate housing.” This can include “couch-surfing,” staying temporarily in a hotel or motel, living in a shelter, living in a vehicle, or staying someplace not normally meant for human habitation (such as a park, abandoned building, etc.).
- Students can also qualify if they are “self-supporting and at risk of being homeless.” This means that they pay for their own living expenses, and their housing may cease to be “fixed, regular, and adequate,” such as if they are being evicted and have nowhere else to go.

When asked “Did any of the following determine the student was homeless or at risk of becoming homeless?” the student should check all that apply if they have a written determination of their homeless status from the entity.

- Director or designee of an emergency or transitional shelter, street outreach program, homeless youth drop-in center, or other program serving those experiencing homelessness
- The student’s high school or school district homeless liaison or designee
- Director or designee of a project supported by a federal TRIO or GEAR UP program grant
- Financial aid administrator (FAA)
- None of the above

- If possible, the student should try to get a determination from one of the entities listed. If the student cannot get verification from one of the authorized entities, select “None of the above.” The student will be marked as a “Provisionally Independent Student” and must contact the Financial Aid Administrator (FAA) at the college they plan to attend to determine whether they meet the definition of homeless or at risk of being homeless. See “Next Steps After Completing the FAFSA or CADAA” for additional details on the process for verifying homeless status.

Student Unusual Circumstances Section: If the student does not qualify as an independent student based on any of the above personal circumstances, they will be asked if there are any unusual circumstances that prevent the student from contacting their parents (e.g., both parents are incarcerated) or would pose a risk to the student (e.g., fleeing home due to an abusive situation). If yes, the student must contact the financial aid office for them to make a final determination.

- It's okay to select “Don't know” when asked if either of the student’s parents attended or completed college. How a student answers does not affect their eligibility for aid.

- If the student will have completed a high school diploma by the start of the 2024-25 academic year, use the search function to ensure that the high school's official name is entered correctly. Students who are homeschooled or pass a high school equivalency exam (i.e., GED) are eligible for federal student aid.

- Keep in mind these key considerations when completing the “Financials” section:
  - When asked about tax return information for the “prior-prior” year, returning college students who received college grants, scholarships, or Americorps benefits and reported that income on their taxes should report that information on the FAFSA so that it is not counted as income. This will help students qualify for more financial aid.
  - When asked to report any current cash, savings, or checking accounts, this should not include student financial aid.
  - Students are asked if they received any federal benefits. Responding yes to this question exempts the student from having to report their current cash, savings, or checking accounts. Keep in mind that the names of these federal programs may be different in California:
    - Medicaid = MediCal
    - SNAP = Cal Fresh
    - TANF = CalWorks
How Financial Need Is Determined

The amount of financial aid a student qualifies for is determined by looking at the cost of college and the student’s income.

Definition of “Financial Need”

COST OF ATTENDANCE (COA)
Total amount it costs to attend college, including tuition, fees, and non-tuition costs such as housing, books, supplies, meals, transportation, etc. Each college defines its COA.

STUDENT AID INDEX (SAI)
A calculation used to determine eligibility for need-based aid, generally based on income, assets, and household size. SAI can go as low as -1500. The lower the number, the more aid the student is eligible for.

ELIGIBILITY FOR NEED-BASED AID
Also referred to as “unmet need.” Need-Based Aid: Cal Grant, Federal Pell Grant, subsidized loans, California College Promise Grant, and Federal Work Study. Students may receive less than the total unmet need, depending on the availability of aid.

NEW
As of the 2024/2025 award year, the Chafee Grant is excluded from the calculation of eligibility for need-based aid, which may allow some students to receive a financial aid award that is more than the COA.
How Financial Aid Is Awarded

NOTIFICATION
Depending on the college or university a student plans to attend, they will be notified of their award through their school's student portal, by email, or by letter. The award letter will provide a summary of the estimated Cost of Attendance (COA) along with how much and what type of aid they will receive.

COMPARING FINANCIAL AID AWARD LETTERS
For students who apply to more than one college or university, reviewing the financial aid award letter to determine which college is offering the best financial aid package is a crucial element in determining which college is the best fit.

COST OF ATTENDANCE (COA)
(tuition, housing, books, fees, meals, transportation, etc.)

- GIFT AID
(free money, like grants and scholarships, that does not need to be paid back)

= NET PRICE
(overall out-of-pocket cost paid now plus any loans the student will need to pay back later)

Knowing a college's COA is critical when comparing financial aid award letters. A student may be offered more aid at one college, but it may be more expensive for the student if the college also has a higher COA. COA varies by each institution, based on factors such as:

Housing Plans
Most colleges adjust their COA based on whether the student is planning to live on campus, off campus, or with parents.

Example | COA at Cal State Northridge is $32,636 if living off campus, $23,702 if living on campus (i.e., dorms), and $19,952 if living with parents.

In-State vs Out-of-State
Out-of-state colleges can be more expensive than in-state. Tuition is typically lower for students attending a public college or university within their state (i.e., CSU or UC). Out-of-state colleges can enter into interstate regional agreements that allow students to take part in nonresident tuition savings programs, such as the Western Undergraduate Exchange Program (WUE), with over 160 participating schools. Learn more at wiche.edu/tuition-savings/wue/.

Example | For students planning to live on campus at Colorado State University (a public college) COA is $51,009 for non-residents of Colorado and $30,449 for residents of Colorado.

Private vs Public
Tuition at private colleges is typically more expensive, however financial aid may be available. Some private colleges, such as Stanford University and the University of Southern California (USC), have free tuition guarantees for low-income students.

Examples of COA for living on campus at a private college (2023–24):
- Stanford University (Palo Alto, CA) - $87,833
- Howard University (Washington, DC) - $55,704
- University of Southern California (Los Angeles, CA) - $90,921
ACCEPTING THE AWARD

Students have the opportunity to accept or decline each type of aid that is offered. When students accept financial aid, they are signing a contract that says they agree to the conditions for each type of financial aid. Students should be aware of the conditions, such as requirements to maintain Satisfactory Academic Progress (SAP), before signing. Learn more about SAP in the “How to Maintain Financial Aid” section.

RECEIVING THE FUNDS

When financial aid money is paid to the student it’s called “disbursement.” How it comes to the student can vary by campus. Generally, it’s by direct deposit, a pre-paid debit card, or a paper check. To avoid paying fees for cash cards or to check-cashing companies, students should set up a checking account at a local bank or credit union. Banks and credit unions can charge fees, so make sure to understand any costs and how to find the best deal.

TIMING

Students may not get their money before the first day of class. Students should find out when they will receive their payments, and plan for that. The financial aid award letter will tell the student the schedule for disbursement of funds. The timing of payments can vary depending on when a student applied for financial aid, when they registered for classes, what type of aid they are receiving, and any changes that occur during the academic year. For example, Federal Pell Grant recipients are allowed to get some money to buy textbooks before the first day of classes. Student loan money, however, may be delayed until 30 days after the start of the term for first-time first-year students. Some colleges will disburse one-half of the award amount at the beginning of the term. If the student stays enrolled in the same units at the mid-term, they will receive the other half. Other schools will disburse all of the award to the student’s account at the college they are attending, deduct tuition, fees, and college-controlled housing costs, if applicable, and provide the remaining money directly to the student. That remainder is the amount students can use to pay for books, parking permits, health insurance, and other living expenses.

BUDGETING

Financial aid disbursements may come in large payments. Students should plan carefully, with the assistance of a supportive adult, and create a budget to make sure their money lasts through the academic year. Visit this resource from the Annie E. Casey Foundation for helpful tips on paying bills and budgeting: tinyurl.com/mrynaue7.
Next Steps After Completing the FAFSA or CADAA

Submitting the FAFSA or CADAA application is just the first step in securing the best financial aid package. Students need to do a few more critical things before they can receive their financial aid.

1. Apply for the Chafee Grant at chafee.csac.ca.gov, if an eligible foster youth, to receive up to $5,000 per year. Students only need to apply for the Chafee Grant once but must submit their FAFSA or CADAA each year. Many students submit their FAFSA or CADAA and Chafee Grant application at the same time. Learn more about the Chafee Grant and who is eligible in the “Types of Financial Aid” Section.

   TIP
   Students who were in FOSTER CARE in another state who intend to go to college in California should email chafeeetv@dss.ca.gov for help deciding if they should apply for the Chafee Grant in California or their home state.

2. Create a WebGrants 4 Students Account at mygrantinfo.csac.ca.gov.
   Once the FAFSA or CADAA is processed, create a WebGrants account to manage the Cal Grant and Chafee Grant online. The FAFSA can take one to two weeks to process and link to WebGrants.
   To receive state financial aid, check for the following items in WebGrants 4 Students:
   - Check the Cal Grant and Chafee Grant award status (Awarded, Pending, or Not Awarded) and verify if there are any “pending” items or “to-do’s” that need to be completed.
   - Verify that a GPA has been received and matched to the FAFSA/CADAA application in order to receive the Cal Grant. A school-verified GPA (grade point average) must be submitted to the California Student Aid Commission (CSAC). For the 2024-25 school year, the deadline has been extended from March 2 to April 2. Students planning to attend community college have until September 2. Most high schools automatically submit GPAs electronically to CSAC for all high school seniors. If there is not a GPA on file, students should contact their high school counselor to troubleshoot and complete the GPA Verification form: www.csac.ca.gov/post/cal-grant-gpa-verification-form.
   - Confirm that the “School of Attendance,” the college that a student plans to attend, is accurate. Update, if needed, within WebGrants.
   - Self-certify the high school graduation date after high school graduation.
   - If the student applies for the Chafee Grant, check that their “Department of Social Services Record” is complete to verify their foster care status. This information is updated monthly so check back if it is not listed initially.
   - Check email and the college student portal weekly. Even after college starts, they should continue to check it often.

3. Pay fees and deposits. If enrollment or housing deposits are due prior to when a student receives financial aid, some four-year colleges and universities provide special arrangements to postpone payment until financial aid is awarded. Check with the financial aid office, basic needs center, or foster youth program. At community colleges, there may be additional fees not covered by the California College Promise Grant. Failure to pay fees can result in a hold on a student’s ability to register for classes.
4. Respond promptly to any requests to verify that the information on the financial aid application is accurate to receive funding as soon as possible. This may include verification of foster care or unaccompanied homeless status. Once a determination is made for foster youth and unaccompanied homeless youth, it does not need to be redetermined every year if the student remains enrolled at the same college.

FOSTER YOUTH verification: Foster youth status for the purposes of independent status on the FAFSA or CADAA is now automatically verified through the California Department of Social Services (CDSS). Some colleges, however, may still require verification if there is an issue with the data match.

Financial aid administrators (FAA) must also accept verification from the following:
- Verification of the student’s eligibility for a Chafee Grant.
- A documented phone call or written statement from an attorney or Court Appointed Special Advocate (CASA).
- A documented phone call or written statement from a state, tribal, or county child welfare agency; foster care placing agency; or foster care facility or placement.

For unaccompanied HOMELESS YOUTH: Financial aid administrators (FAA) must accept documentation, including a documented phone call, written statement, or verified data match from the entities listed on page 10. If the student cannot get verification from one of those entities, the FAA must make a determination based on a written statement or documented interview with the student.

5. Update all accounts if contact information or income changes. Students need to update their contact information (i.e., address, email address, and phone number) on ALL of their online accounts (i.e., WebGrants, college portal, FAFSA/CADAA, etc.) so that they get important messages. The FAFSA and CADAA ask about income and assets from the prior–prior year, however, if a student’s income went down they should contact their financial aid office to see if they can have their Student Aid Index (SAI) adjusted.
6. Review the FAFSA Submission Summary, or CADAA Summary, to learn about a student’s eligibility for financial aid.

   □ Where can the student find the FAFSA Submission Summary? If a student provides an email address on their FAFSA, they will receive an email message with their FAFSA Submission Summary within one to two weeks. For the 2024/2025 FAFSA, this may take longer for FAFSAs filed in January. Students can also access this information by logging back into their FAFSA. If they do not provide an email address, it will be mailed within seven to ten days. For students who submit a CADAA, the summary is usually processed within 24 hours. Students should review these carefully, and if anything does not look right, contact a financial aid counselor at the college they plan to attend.

   □ What does the FAFSA Submission Summary show? The FAFSA Submission Summary summarizes information provided on the application and gives an estimate of what financial aid the student MAY be eligible for. It is not their financial aid award letter. It includes the student’s Student Aid Index (SAI) which is a calculation used to determine eligibility for need-based aid. If the SAI is “0” or a negative amount the student will likely qualify for maximum aid. The FAFSA Submission Summary will also notify the student if they have been selected for additional verification.

   □ What is the California Aid Report? If a student receives a Cal Grant, they also will get a California Aid Report. They can check the status of their Cal Grant at WebGrants. See #2 above.

7. If you have trouble paying for food, rent, or other basic needs, visit your college’s basic needs center. Beginning in 2024-2025, emergency aid that is disbursed by colleges does not reduce a student’s eligibility for other financial aid even if the student has no remaining “unmet need.”

8. Take advantage of support programs. All institutions offer a variety of programs to help students realize their full potential including EOPS at community colleges, EOP at most universities, basic needs centers, disabled student programs, programs for parenting students, and more. Many of these offer additional financial support to eligible students.

   FOR FOSTER YOUTH: All California Community Colleges, CSU, and UC campuses, and even some private universities, have special support programs for foster youth. Their program names and eligibility criteria vary (e.g., NextUp, Guardian Scholars). Many of these programs can provide additional aid like book grants or emergency grants. Visit cacollegepathways.org/search-foster-youth-programs/ for more information.

Filing taxes may qualify you for more money! Most half-time and full-time students qualify for a cash-back education credit and should file their tax return using a 1098-T form they can access from their financial aid account online or financial aid office. Students should keep receipts for books and class supplies they paid for directly.

Students (18 years or older during that tax year) who have worked and earned at least $1 should also file since they may qualify for the Earned Income Tax Credit. Some foster youth will even qualify for an extra tax credit based on their experience in foster care! Parenting students should file whether they have worked or not since they qualify for the child tax credit. Any childcare expenses a parent pays for while they attend school or work can also be deducted on their taxes and parents should keep receipts or other proof of the total amount paid for childcare during the year. Learn more here: jbay.org/resources/tax-prep.
Apply for other scholarships. See Appendix A for a list of private scholarships for foster youth as well as general scholarship search websites.

SCHOLARSHIP APPLICATION TIPS:

1. Start your search early. High school seniors are advised to begin applying at the start of their senior year.

2. Ask for help. It’s ok to have someone review your essays and provide feedback.

3. Make a budget. Determine how much money you need throughout the school year. Keep in mind costs that may occur during summer when you are not in school. Here is one resource that may be helpful: tinyurl.com/mrynaue7.

4. Stay organized. Keep a log of all the scholarships you apply to. The log might include the name of the scholarship, website, award amount, deadline to apply, the date you applied, and the status of your application (pending, received, and not-awarded).

5. Create a general essay. Many scholarships require essays. Write a general essay that you can edit and adjust to fit the requirements of each scholarship that you apply to. A typical essay might talk about why you would like to attend college, a challenge you have experienced and overcome, and your future educational and career goals.

6. Be honest, but only share what feels comfortable. There are many scholarship opportunities available to students. Find ones that are in line with your goals and experiences. Only disclose elements of your personal experience, such as being in foster care or experiencing homelessness, that you feel comfortable sharing.

7. Be patient and don’t give up. Applying to scholarships can be a lot of work and may take a long time before you get a response. Don’t give up or be discouraged. Keep trying! Even small awards add up. Remember that whether you receive a scholarship is not a reflection of your worth.

8. Review your financial aid award letters carefully. If you receive a private scholarship, a new law in California prohibits colleges and universities from reducing the amount that they are providing to offset the scholarship award (within the maximum that you are allowed to receive, known as Cost of Attendance). Make sure to review your financial aid letter before and after reporting any scholarships and discuss with the financial aid office if you think other forms of aid have been reduced as a result of reporting a scholarship. This applies only to students receiving the Pell Grant or aid through the CADAA.

9. Avoid scams. You shouldn’t have to pay to receive or apply for a scholarship. Avoid common scams such as these:

   - Fees – “Buy now or miss this opportunity.” Don’t give in to pressure tactics. You shouldn’t have to pay to search or apply for scholarships.
   - Scholarship Guarantee – “We guarantee you’ll get aid.” A company could claim it fulfilled its promise if you were offered student loans or a $200 scholarship. Is that worth a fee of $1,000 or more?
   - Credit card or bank account information needed – “I’ve got aid for you; give me your credit card or bank account number.” Never give out a credit card or bank account number unless you know the organization you are giving it to is legitimate. You could be putting yourself at risk of identity theft. Never provide your social security number.
   - Unsolicited scholarships – “You’ve been selected.” If you are called to receive an award for which you never applied, be careful, it’s likely a scam.
   - Unsecure websites – Check all websites in your browser and avoid websites that are not secure.
How to Maintain Financial Aid

Maintaining eligibility for financial aid requires making Satisfactory Academic Progress (SAP). SAP comes down to not dropping too many classes and maintaining a good GPA.

In addition, while a student is awarded aid based on their financial need and the number of units they enroll in, if they drop classes, they may be required to pay financial aid back.

What does SATISFACTORY ACADEMIC PROGRESS (SAP) consist of?

Each college and university tracks three areas for SAP. Here are the basics:

1. Completing academic coursework with high enough GPA
   All schools require a minimum GPA, often set at 2.0 on a 4-point scale but it varies by campus.

2. Maximum time frame
   Each college and university uses a formula to calculate the maximum number of units students can take before completing their degree or program. For example: If a student is attending a community college that requires 60 units for an AA (associate of arts degree), they cannot take more than 90 units to complete the degree.

3. Passing enough classes along the way
   Each college and university has a set “passing rate” required to stay in good academic standing. Grades of F (failures) and W (withdrawals) count against the passing rate.

Student Spotlight: Understanding Satisfactory Academic Progress (SAP)

NOTE: If a FOSTER YOUTH student does not meet SAP standards for federal and state financial aid and loses eligibility, they may still be able to maintain their Chafee Grant. The Chafee Grant allows for more flexible SAP policies than other forms of aid.
Here are some key tips for students to maintain financial aid and avoid financial aid debt:

- Get connected proactively to on-campus resources designed to set up students for success. This can include tutoring, foster youth campus support programs (e.g., NextUp, Guardian Scholars), disability support services, or other general campus resources (e.g., EOP, EOPS, etc.).

- Meet with a qualified academic counselor to get help with registering for appropriate classes and the right unit load (courseload) to be successful.

- Talk to an academic counselor before dropping or withdrawing from any class. Too many withdrawals can impact a student’s completion rate for SAP. Also, if a student receives financial aid and then drops classes, depending on the point during the term this occurs, a student may be required to pay back money for the classes they dropped. For example, if they are awarded financial aid for being a full-time student, but then drop classes before the drop deadline and become a half-time student, the student will need to pay back half of the money they received. Repayment can also be triggered by earning all Fs.

- If a student is disqualified from financial aid for not meeting SAP, they may have the option of appealing the decision. Many students may experience a bad academic term—they get sick, or have to take care of a family member, or work gets too demanding and they fall behind in classes. They can talk with a counselor to ask for help and learn about their options for appealing the disqualification and getting financial aid reinstated.

What to do if a student has to pay back financial aid?

If a student is told that they must repay some of their financial aid, they will need to meet with the financial aid administrator at their college to make a payment plan. If they don’t, they will not be able to register for classes or get official college transcripts and will be subject to long-term government debt collection or federal and state tax offset (this means the government will take any income tax refunds a student is owed until the debt is paid). Students should make a plan as soon as possible.

Here are some things to know before a student meets with a school administrator:

- Colleges generally want students to continue their enrollment and studies.
- Students have a right to see how the debt was calculated and challenge the calculation.
- Colleges have flexibility when making repayment arrangements. However, because there are no legal requirements not all colleges make repayment arrangements.
- Students should try to get all helpful partners in the room together. For example, this could include their foster youth program counselor, a financial aid staff member, a mentor, or anyone else who is supportive in their life.
- Explore all possible sources of repayment—students should ask the financial aid office and their foster youth program counselor or basic needs center for help finding resources.
- Most colleges make repayment arrangements directly. However, if a debt has been turned over to the U.S. Department of Education, the college can no longer make repayment arrangements. This is why it is important to address payment issues as soon as the student learns about them.
